Most Voters Cast Ballots Against No Smoking Rule Poll By Student Government Shows 81 Per Cent Disapprove Measure

By Eva Kafka

Eighty-one per cent of the 1057 students who voted in the poll conducted by the student government last Wednesday voiced their disapproval of the faculty measure to ban smoking in the classrooms.

Of a total of 1057 votes only 198 were in favor of the ban which would also prohibit eating and drinking in the rooms. Fifty-five and seven-tenths per cent of the entire student body cast votes. Acting on this information, the student government appealed to Dr. John E. Pomfret, president of the college, but action on the bill had already been postponed in order to (1) work out details, and (2) to prevent the student government from feeling that it was "sold down the river."

Rumors Caused Feelings

A spokesman for the faculty, who preferred not to have his name disclosed, told reporters that he did not believe it was the bill itself that caused the ill feeling among the students, but rather the untimely rumors about it. The news was allowed to leak out in "undignified" fashion, before the bill had actually been passed and thus it appeared as if the action had been taken behind the back of the student government.

The faculty committee, in defending the bill against the accusation that smoking was singled out from the other "filth" in the classrooms, declared that 75 per cent of the litter was the result of smoking and therefore constituted the biggest part of the problem.

Faculty Has Agreed

The faculty has generally agreed about the principles of the bill and even those who voted against it considered matters of procedure rather than the content of the ruling itself. Generally the objectives the bill seeks to accomplish are (1) dirt control (2) protection of non-smokers (3) protection of professors' voices and (4) all-over sanitation.

The question naturally arises as to what will be termed a "classroom" and whether laboratories which do not get the multiple use of rooms in Marshall-Wythe and Washington are to be included under this heading. These and other problems including the possibility of placing sand urns in the halls for butt-disposal purposes can now, with the postponement of the bill, be considered.

The delay will give the student government time to draw up its case in writing, and to present their recommendations to the faculty committee. In this way the bill can be broken down into specific parts and a possible workable solution may be found.

Thomas Athey Reports Results Of Honor Trial

In accordance with the new policy adopted by the Honor Councils, Tom Athey, chairman of the men's council, reported the following case:

Question	Decision
Cheating	Not Guilty

"I wish to stress," Athey declared, "that it was a question of whether there had been cheating in a certain practice; there was no charge of cheating."

Students To Attend Annual IRC Meeting

Several William and Mary students will leave for the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, N. C., on Thursday, February 26, to attend the annual conference of the Northern District of the Southeast Region of International Relations Clubs.

John H. Fritz, vice-president of the Northern District and president of the William and Mary IRC, will introduce the main speaker, Dr. Paul F. Douglass, president of the American University in Washington and Director of the School of Social Science and Public Affairs. William E. Helseth, vice-president of the local IRC, will be the discussion leader of a seminar on Political Conditions of Modern Europe.

Other William and Mary students who are planning to attend the conference are Jean Morgan, Abner Pratt, Pauline Chakeres, and Mike Grenata. Delegates from 81 schools in the states of Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee will be at the conference.

No Dance Saturday

There will be no dance on Saturday, February 28, Alan C. Stewart, assistant professor of fine arts, announced today. The college band will next perform on March 6, following the mid-winter dance, featuring Johnny Long, which will be held on the preceding night.

Seminar Speaker Robeson Decries Government Interference In Industry

By Bill Greer

Speaking at the first meeting of the Marshall-Wythe Seminar last Friday, E. J. Robeson, vice-president and personnel manager of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, spoke out against government interference in industry and discussed the contributions which have been made by American industrialists during the past two generations. Some of the factors which have helped industry attain the high position it occupies today, according to the speaker, are the profit motive, the freedom which businesses possessed in their growing years, and the great amount of experience of the industrialists of the nation.

"The whole theory of enforced coerced way of living... is wrong," he said, speaking of government controls over industry, adding that "government should have nothing to do with it." He attributed the difficulties of industry in relation to government to the fact that men in high positions have not performed the degree of service expected from men of their positions.

Speaking "around the subject" of The Role of the Industrial Leader in America, Robeson offered the first lecture on the general topic of the semester for the seminar on American Civilization. See SEMINAR, Page 10

Dr. John Nelson To Begin Program By Speaking At Morning Worship

By Jan Walser

Dr. John Oliver Nelson, Director of the Commission on the Ministry, will begin the activities of Religious Emphasis Day by delivering the sermon, Religion—Dead or Alive? in the worship service on Sunday, February 29, at 11 A. M. in Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

As director of the Commission on the Ministry, Dr. Nelson has been an executive of the Federal Council of Churches since 1945. His task is to coordinate and advance, in two dozen denominations, programs of enlistment of church vocations.

Among college students, Dr. Nelson's leadership has been exerted in scores of religious emphasis programs and as editor of Intercollegian, national student Christian journal, since 1943.

At Kirkridge, a retreat-and-study center in the Pennsylvania Appalachians, he has been working in a fellowship committed to deepening the sense of Christian vocation, especially among ministers, and edited Kirkridge Contour, the monthly leaflet of that movement.

A resident of Pittsburgh, Pa., he attended Shady Side Academy and later was graduated magna cum laude from Princeton University. While preparing for his B.D. degree, he studied at the University of Edinburgh in Scotland and McCormick Seminary in Chicago and later obtained his Ph. D. degree at Yale in philosophy of religion.

As pastor of Brentwood Presbyterian Church in Pittsburgh from 1935-1940, he increased the congregation, rebuilt the church, organized missions in the nearby mining communities and headed the city Protestant Committee on Scouting.

Dr. Nelson is the author of several books, including Look at the Ministry, We Have This Ministry and America Inherits Religion and is a board member of Haddam House, a publishing group located in New York.

Dr. Nelson is also a member of the new Youth Division of the National Council Against Conscription.

Following the morning worship the discussion groups which will begin at 2:30 P. M. are as follows: Is Religion Vital to Marriage?, under the leadership of Dr. Murray Kantor, will be held in the Trophy Room in Blow Gymnasium; Is It Modern to Be Skeptical?; under the direction of Dr. Sidney C. Rome, will meet in Brafferton Hall; Is the Bible an Antique?, under the leadership of Dr. Baldwin Kelley, will meet in the Dodge Room; Campus Question Marks, under the direction of Dr. Theodore O. Wedel will meet in the Apollo Room.

At 4 P. M. a reception will be held in the Dodge Room and evening vespers will take place at 7 P. M. in Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

Manos, McCarthy Commence Study Of Macbeth Roles

By Ronald King

Assuming the greatest challenges of their dramatic careers, John Manos and Mary McCarthy have commenced intensive characterization studies of the roles of Macbeth and Lady Macbeth for the forthcoming Shakespearean tragedy.

Mary, a fine arts major from Minnesota, has served in many capacities, on stage and backstage, for a host of local theatre productions. A prop girl, crew worker,

Veterans Dominate Dean's List

Veteran students held an edge in academic achievement over non-veterans during the past semester, according to figures released by John E. Hocutt, dean of men.

Of the total number of veterans enrolled, 15 per cent met the requirements for dean's list privileges, as contrasted to the 13 per cent of non-veterans who achieved the honor. Ten of the 11 men who have made straight A grades are also veterans.

A breakdown of the dean's list by class shows that 51 were seniors, 48 juniors, 52 sophomores, 25 freshmen, and 12 graduate students, a total of 188 men from an enrollment of 1306. The overall percentage of men students on the dean's list is 14.4 per cent, a 2.8 drop from last semester's number.

Seniors who graduated this month with averages placing them on dean's list, and who did not register for the second semester are Frank Emmerson, William Geiger, Irving Lansman, Edward Lodge, Donald Taylor, Robert Trigg, and Daniel Wilson.

Cutting Campus

With the coming of spring each year, this paper ALWAYS runs an editorial concerning civic pride and its relation to cutting campus. We want to remind our readers that we dislike writing these "standard" articles more than the subscribers hate reading them. But duty calls, and we'll consume some more space on this rather important subject.

We immediately discard the idea that cutting campus saves time. On the whole, relatively few new walks are needed, especially after the authorities constructed many new ones last year. Since the major "face-lifting" job was completed in June, we all owe it to the college to keep our campus beautiful, and it is hard to beat William and Mary when the beauty of the grounds is considered.

It has been pointed out, however, that drivers operating college-owned trucks are doing their share to plow up certain areas, notably the space in front of Barrett Hall. It doesn't inspire students to stay on the walks when the college's own trucks continue to use their established short cuts. Only if everyone cooperates will the situation be remedied.

While we are on the subject of walks and drives, we shall discuss a point brought up at a recent meeting of the General Co-operative committee meeting by Howard Hyle, president of the student body. Though the point seems trivial, it is worthy of note. Hyle wonders why the entrance to the college has been "concealed" on the road around the lily pond. People unfamiliar with the roads around the college are completely at a loss when they are greeted by a "Do Not Enter" sign at what seems to be the entrance to the grounds. It seems as if a nice looking and expensive gate is going to waste. We suggest that either the statues of William and Mary be turned around so that one may gaze at something other than their "dorsal" sides, place a "Thank You—Come Again" sign at the gate so that people will be distracted from the fact that they are leaving by the real entrance, or direct the traffic in the opposite direction when the present painted lines are worn off the drive. The latter is more practical and is probably cheaper, eliminating time wasted by "foreigners" in their search for the entrance. We think it would be better, even if the entrance caused a lot of left-hand turns into traffic.

March Brings WSCGA Elections

Lb. Moore Enumerates Requirements

March comes in like a lion—and stays that way all month as far as the members of the Women Students' Cooperative Government are concerned.

With March and a revival of "jockey corner" comes the inevitable, prolonged, and exasperating process of electing WSCG officers. Meetings every Monday night, voting every Wednesday, endless ballot counting for the incumbent officers, political action among the sororities—and a fervent prayer from everyone that there will be no ties requiring another election—that's the usual procedure during March.

Of course, for a two-dollar fee, any co-ed can escape these Lb. Moore necessary activities, but many realize that there is something at stake in selecting the leaders of the Association. This year we have progressed a little farther in making the unwieldy organization more effective—even if the effectiveness has been achieved by dealing with such paramount problems as hot pipes in dorm closets, and informing men of the women's rules.

List Of Qualifications

Shuz Sprague, president of WSCG, prepared us a little for elections at the last meeting by suggesting a few of the qualifications of a student government leader. But these qualifications were idealistic, if not impossible.

We think it would be wiser to look over the material for leadership and see how it fits into the local situation. How willing are the prospective office-holders to devote time—and lots of it—to their jobs? How responsible will they be? How much diplomacy can they muster for meeting with the faculty and administration? But, most of all, are they sincerely interested in student government? Are they interested enough to promote it both among the students and the faculty and administration? These qualifications, combined with a few good ideas, will make for good officers.

It is ridiculous to try to overlook the importance of sorority politics in these coming elections. The sororities always have exerted, and probably always will exert, political pressure because of the fact that sororities strive to excel in extra-curricular activities as well as other things and it is logical that a sorority woman will support her sister in an election simply because she knows the candidate better, if for no other reason.

Unfortunate Condition

But politics has reached an unfortunate condition when two or more sororities join forces with an agreement to elect their members to office. Seems wise at least to keep the political action within the individual chapters, but there is nothing that can be done if the above-mentioned condition does occur.

As long as we do have the sororities selecting the officers in most cases, they might take the responsibility of looking their group over and selecting the most capable members for an office.

There is a tendency among the women students to elect girls who have been in office for the past term, simply because they've had experience and have not incurred any active displeasure among the women. This is a rather flimsy excuse for retaining an officer. There are many fine leaders in office now, but there are among us as many leaders, or more, who are not in office. So unless she has shown an active interest and participation in her particular job—an officer should not be re-elected on the strength of "experience".

Those of you who plod down the Duke of Gloucester Street may have noticed that an extensive project of excavation is in progress at the Williamsburg Theatre.

My first guess was that the Virginia Board of Health had decreed that all miserable Sunday movies be buried immediately after the last showing. Upon reflection I decided that it was just Mr. McCray looking for football players.

The real reason for the excavation is that Humphrey Bogart and Walter Huston are panning for gold down there. They've dug as far as Chandler Hall by now; so girls, watch yourselves!

I mention this only in passing to my topic for the week. About six months ago I was asked to write a scenario for M-G-M (Metro-Geek-Madman). It was to be a story patterned after Margaret Mitchell's Gone With The Wind, with Williamsburg as the locale.

Unfortunately, the producers have decided, instead, to do a little number called Captain from Toledo. I still have my scenario, and thought you would like to read what might have been, the greatest production ever executed.

My show, a sag of the old South, is entitled Gone With the Wit. Read a few lines and you'll see what I mean.

As the picture opens, Varlet Mascara, beautiful co-ed at the College of William and Mary (this was 85 years ago, remember), is seated on the steps of the Wren Building. With her are two handsome young men wearing uniforms.

VAR: You all say you all love me. Why are you all leaving me, then?

MEN: 'Cause we gotta whip them Yankees, ma'am.

VAR: But, why?

MEN: 'Cause we play for the Boston Red Sox, ma'am.

The scene fades as quickly as possible to Twelve Cokes, the great estate of Ashley Silkes. Ashley, whom Varlet loves with a chartreuse passion, is roasting an economics professor on the turnspit. Ashley turns and spits as Varlet rushes to his side.

VAR: I love you, Ashley. I worship the sight of your gentle eyes . . . the touch of your gentle hand . . . the sound of your gentle voice. . . .

ASH: (Gently) Aaaaah . . . shaddaap!

VAR: Oh, Ashley. I love you so. Why can't you love me?

ASH: Well . . . O.K.

They embrace, the lights flicker, and the next scene is the maternity ward of a local hospital.

War! . . . Varlet offers her services at the College laundry; but after three weeks of viewing the horrible destruction which takes place there, gives up and goes to Lexington. She disguises herself as a VMI cadet. All goes well until she reports for physical education classes.

Varlet returns to the campus. She goes immediately to the College dining hall, puts forty sticks of dynamite in the kitchen, and sets off the mighty-blast, swearing, "As Mr. Kent is my witness, I'll never go hungry again."

Varlet journeys to her tattered sorority house. Gad! The College has just raised the rent to $285 per semester. Where, oh, where, can she get the money? Ah . . . the very one! . . . Rhett Smutler, the rogue, is in the stocks at Williamsburg for smoking hams in the classrooms. Rhett has KINGS COLUMN . . . money. He was a student assistant in the auditor's office. Varlet realizes that she can't go to Rhett looking like a co-ed at an eight o'clock class. No . . . She must use her ingenuity.

As she surveys the room, her eye falls upon the floor. Stooping over to pick it up, Varlet gets a brilliant idea. She will go nude and tell Rhett that she stopped to see him on her way to a "come-as-you-are" party.

Rhett cannot help her. He has invested all his money in chain letters and the results have been rather discouraging.

As Varlet returns to the house, she hears noises. Upon investigation, she finds a young man rummaging through the rooms.

VAR: What are you doing here?

MAN: I'm a pledge in a fraternity at the University of Virginia. I'm on a scavenger hunt. Here's the list of things I'm supposed to bring back.

VAR: Let's see . . . Hmmm . . . A pint of Four Roses . . . Fifth of Schenley's . . . A flask of Calvert Reserve . . .

MAN: Yeh . . . Monotonous, isn't it?

The war ends. Varlet, meanwhile, has picked up a Ph. D. in Marriage Relations; yet she loves Ashley . . . or so she thinks!

Her hero returns from the wars a changed man. No longer does he resist her advances. This kid hasn't seen a white woman in three years, fighting in Pennsylvania as he did.

Varlet finds him unattractive now. That's the old Hollywood formula: When he wants to, she doesn't want to. When she wants to, he doesn't want to. And when they both want to, the picture ends.

Nothing so trite in my scenario! Nosirree! My picture has a surprising ending.

Varlet reforms her evil ways and dedicates her life to humanity. She takes a job as an inspector in a yo-yo factory and falls in love with Phineas Yuk, supervisor of the singing yo-yo department.

The picture reaches its stupendous climax with a magnificent wedding scene in which appear the Marx brothers, the Rockettes, Lassie, the Don Cossack Chorus, and Phil Spitalny and his all-ghoul orchestra, featuring Evelyn and her magic sawed-off shotgun.

The minister asks Varlet, "Will thou have this man, etc." Varlet looks at Phineas and says, "You bet!"

The minister asks Phineas, "Will thou take this woman, etc." Phineas looks at Varlet and says, "Frankly, my dear, I don't give a damn!"

Varlet is heartbroken. But she won't think about it today. She'll think about it tomorrow. After all, tomorrow is another day.

Yes, tomorrow is another day. There's a bit of logic for you.

And best of all, my picture has a message:

"Run, do not walk, to the nearest exit!"

Letter To The Editor Wants Explanation!

Flat Hat Neglects To Give Credit To Alumni

To the Editor:

I am writing this on behalf of the Alumni Board to bring certain facts to attention of the student body.

At a meeting of the Board on June 6 it became known that no provision had been made, presumably because of a shortage of funds, to send William and Mary's outstanding tennis team to the National Collegiate tournament in California. The Board thereupon approved unanimously the underwriting of a $600 contribution for the purpose of sending the team to this tournament.

Immediately afterward a campaign was undertaken among the memberships of various alumni chapters to raise sufficient funds for the trip. Wayne C. Metcalf, retiring president of the Board, took personal charge of the campaign, spending much time, effort and personal funds in reaching the goal. Those alumni attending on Alumni Day, June 7, contributed $62. Before the tournament was held June 23 a total of $1,038.25 had been contributed as follows: Roanoke, $329; Richmond, $158.50; Hampton-Newport News, $150; Williamsburg, $100; Buffalo, $100; New York City, $50; Baltimore, $35; Norfolk, $22.50; Charleston, W. Va., $17.25; Raleigh, N. C., $14.

In addition to the $600 advanced for the trip, this special fund reimbursed Dean Umbeck $140 which he had spent from personal funds to handle expenses of the trip. There is a balance of $298.25 in the fund at this writing.

Nothing like this had been done before in the history of alumni-student relations at William and Mary. The Society of Alumni had every reason to be proud and wanted the student body to know of this interest. The facts were mentioned to a Flat Hat representative, yet no story ever appeared. In fact, a story appearing after college opened in the fall went to great lengths in citing the team's achievement, mentioning that the money was raised by the College some way.

I wrote a letter in October to the sports editor, Mr. Greer, calling his attention to the oversight but never received a reply. When the Alumni Board met on November 28 this matter was considered and disappointment expressed that the Flat Hat did not inform the student body how the tennis team happened to reach Los Angeles and was enabled to win the National title. The Board delegated me to contact Flat Hat staff members and direct their attention to the matter. I was unable to find the editor but I did talk with Mr. Greer who did not explain failure to answer my letter but promised to write something giving the facts cited above. Thus far, the Flat Hat has continued to ignore the whole business. Don't you think an explanation is in order, especially to the student body who might like to know that alumni are so much interested in their activities? The lack of such recognition is not likely to encourage future efforts.

Since I have broached this matter, allow me to add that the Alumni Board desires to establish closer relationship with the student body and is open to suggestions at all times as to ways of accomplishing that objective. We would appreciate communications and personal appearances in the interest of advancing our beloved college. The Society of the Alumni is the link between it and those fleeting student days. Even the freshman is only four years from being an alumnus. Our interest in the college welfare should be mutual.

Sincerely yours,

M. CARL ANDREWS, '27,
Member, Board of Directors
Society of the Alumni.

Editor's Note:

The sports editor, managing editor and I were informed about this matter in October, 1947. We thought it inadvisable to print the story at that time because football was the only sports activity in the students' minds. A tennis team story has little news value, even if the ALUMNI did send it to California, when William and Mary had a winning football team.

We planned to give all due credit to the alumni in a big story when the tennis season officially opens. Mr. Greer also told me in October that he would write a column in the spring, criticizing the Athletic Association for being financially "stingy" with every athletic team except the football squad, despite the fact that the football teams bring in the largest monetary return. All in all, releasing the story in the spring would have had MUCH more effect.

At any rate, the Flat Hat DID NOT purposely neglect giving the alumni credit for their EXCEEDINGLY GENEROUS efforts and contributions.

A. R. J.

To the Editor;

It was stated in the Flat Hat on February 17 that at the last meeting of the Senior Class plans were made to petition the Committee on Special Events to hold graduation exercises in Matoaka Park instead of in front of the Wren Building. The undersigned members of the Class of 1948, who attended the meeting, remember no such action being agreed upon. The question of where the graduation exercises would be held was discussed very briefly, and it is our opinion that there was as much sentiment in favor of the Wren Building as there was for the amphitheatre. No motion or resolution on the matter was made.

There has been a tendency on the part of the officers of the Senior Class to take unilateral action on matters affecting the class without consulting the class as a whole. Such action is thoroughly out of accord with the spirit of student government and democracy. If a minority of the class are to make decisions without the approval of the class as a whole, then meetings such as the one held on February 10 are superfluous.

We demand that no action on a petition to the Committee on Special Events be taken until the Class has voted that such action be taken, and we ask for an explanation from the Class officers as to why this announcement was made in the Flat Hat when no formal action by the Class has been taken.

Yours truly,
John H. Fritz

To the Editor:

A comic interlude in the midwinter routine of local academic life was furnished last week by the leading news article in the Flat Hat. Mr. Paul Carre's delightful jest suggests that he may become a master of prose irony. Not since Jonathan Swift's Argument against Abolishing Christianity perplexed the brains of Londoners has a clear subject created such confusion; not since Swift's Meditation upon a Broomstick has so trivial a matter been magnified by such solemnity. Particularly skillful were the monologues imagined for Mr. Thomas Athey and Mr. John Dayton, although it seems, perhaps, a little cruel to assign to fellow students fictitious remarks of such ineptness. One says "may become a master," for there are in Mr. Carre's article frequent moments when the reader is uncertain whether the pretentiousness and confusion are effects of art or chance. But one must ascribe to immaturity those faults of style and that occasional petulance of tone which mar the whole. Moreover, the editors of the Flat Hat are to be complimented on their timing of the release, for the mellowness of the burlesque was in keeping with the premature warmth of that sunny February 18. They are to be thanked, too, for providing the only kind of article that could arouse their contemporaries from the lethargy that the unseasonable warmth induced. And finally all your readers are grateful that you furnished to Mr. Ronald King a theme that he handled with his incomparable Boeotian waggishness.

But the amusing tone of irritable excitement that Mr. Carre, especially through his characters, feigned to stimulate and delight his readers seems unfortunately to have been taken seriously by a few, and indeed to have been imitated without an equal measure of good temper and good judgment. Some have gone so far as to suppose that the faculty resolution was designed as a tyrannical encroachment on their rights, and not, as indeed it was, to deepen in them a sense of pride in the College of William and Mary, to heighten, that is, if I may employ a popular if meaningless cliché, their "school spirit." The cooler and maturer judgment of most, however, must have seen that there is from the resolution a gain every way to the student body. For a minority (and who in a democracy will not respect the interests of a minority?) Lenten renunciations are made easier to keep. For a few others abstaining from smoking for hourly intervals in classrooms, as in church, will afford training whereby the more tyrannical two-hour deprivation of their rights that movies require can be more easily borne. For the majority, abstaining from smoking during 50 minutes out of every 60 during 15 of the 168 hours in each week will make possible a financial retrenchment for which few wed or unwed students will not be grateful. To a few articulate students there has been afforded a congenial minor issue of considerateness and good breeding that can be inflated to extraordinary disproportionateness; to their audience is offered an exhibition of student-faculty baiting, from which they must confess they derive more pleasure than makes amends for the irritation caused by the restriction. Finally, visitors to the College, and especially to Marshall-Wythe, will, if students and faculty can cooperate for the remainder of the semester, be able to distinguish William and Mary in appearance from Dogpatch, and Mr. Al Capp, whose visit for inspiration for a new Slobberia has been impending, will be directed to Central Park on any July Monday morning.

Bickerstaff

P. S. If the drinking fountains in Marshall-Wythe could be repaired, perhaps the number of Coke bottles in rooms would be diminished. Would this too greatly reduce the financial returns to the College from the Coke machine?

To the Editor:

The headline "Armstrong Labels Moss Author" appearing over the Flat Hat story covering faculty action on smoking in classrooms is misleading on two counts.

(1) One would be led to believe that I had disclosed this information. The authorship of the resolution was known to many students before my statement to the Flat Hat.

(2) One might conclude that I disapproved of the action taken by Mr. Moss. On the contrary I believe that in view of the findings reported by the Committee on Student Use of Classrooms for Study Purposes any member of the faculty would have been justified in making this resolution. Responsibility is shared equally by every member who voted for it. I was one of these.

I believe the resolution is lacking in detail and that it can be administered with less confusion if this is supplied before it becomes effective.

Very truly yours,
A. R. Armstrong

Wilson's Squad Battles VMI At Lexington In Loop Game

Two Southern Conference games remain on the William and Mary basketball schedule, and by taking both, Coach Barney Wilson's team would stand an excellent chance of being invited to the Southern Conference tournament scheduled for March 4, 5 and 6.

Tonight, the Braves play VMI's Keydets at Lexington, and they return to Williamsburg for the season's finale at Blow Gym Saturday 8 P. M. against the University of Richmond.

Smoke Signals

By BILL GREER

Some days ago at a meeting in Richmond, a committee of the Southern Conference, composed of representatives from five schools, voted the conference's acceptance of a "purity code" of ethics to be followed by its members in attempts to call a halt to some of the ridiculous extremes to which recruiting of athletes has been carried.

The expressed aim is to limit the amounts of aid offered to athletes to the total fees of the institution. It is a noble gesture, but a rather empty one, with about as many loopholes as it has words.

With sports, and football especially, growing to great proportions in colleges and universities, the move under way by the reformers of athletes seem doomed to failure at the present time because the students, alumni and supporters of schools are not willing for it to be successful. There is a great desire—almost reaching the proportions of a craze—for the fielding of outstanding teams at the schools of the nation, and a large part of this fever is found among the alumni.

Alumni May 'Pay The Freight'

It is through the alumni that football players, who are usually considered the core of the problem, may be subsidized even though the school might give them no direct help whatsoever. This subsidization may take the form of material or monetary gifts or promises of lucrative jobs. Most of the large-scale paying of athletes today is done through the schools, however, and many would be very hesitant about ceasing the practice.

Success of any anti-subsidization program would necessarily depend upon cooperation of schools all over the nation, or large natural geographic areas such as the South and South-central area, the Southwest, or the Middle-west. Isolated acceptances of the policy would mean virtual elimination of the minority making the move.

Independent schools in an area where a conference has voted "purity" could undermine the program by snatching up the best of the athletes in the area. For instance, the University of Virginia and Georgetown, located in the Southern Conference sector, could deal a serious blow at such a program by vigorous recruiting of a type which has not been undertaken by either.

Some of the fantastic inducements reported are true, although many false rumors are spread, too. Some of the inducements offered at some schools are automobiles, cash outlays, unlimited credit at certain stores, and very attractive jobs after graduation. All these things are offered in addition

William and Mary holds victories over both teams, having taken a 53-39 verdict over VMI and a hard-fought, 50-47, win from the Spiders just before mid-year examinations. Both games were close contests most of the way, although the Indians were able to run up the score on VMI near the end of the game because the team was in better condition.

Victories in the two games this week, to go with the one over Washington and Lee last Saturday would give the Braves a conference record of eight wins and seven defeats. The top eight teams in the loop are invited to the tourney, and they are selected on a percentage basis.

Wilson's Indians were hitting on all cylinders last week, with Charlie Sokol back in the lineup with Charlie Teach, Chet Giermak, Fuzzy McMillan and Sherman Robinson. Giermak, Sokol and McMillan, the team's top point makers, hit their stride on the trip to Boston and may be able to turn in some even better performances on Virginia courts.

Giermak will have a chance to improve his position in his race with Chuck Noe of Virginia for the state scoring leadership. The top man probably will not be decided until both teams have finished their seasons.

Tennis Players Choose Tut Bartzen Captain Of '48 Title-defending Team

Members of William and Mary's national championship tennis team last week re-elected as their captain Bernard (Tut) Bartzen, of San Angelo, Texas, who is now preparing for his final season as one of the mainstays of Coach Sharvy G. Umbeck's stellar outfit.

Bartzen, one of the country's steadiest young performers, utilized his southpaw strokes so well during last summer's tournament play that he and Gardner Larned were awarded the No. 4 rating in national doubles. Their supreme effort came in the Southampton Invitational when they downed Jack Kramer and Ted Schroeder, 11-9, 6-3.

First National Title

Tut, Larned, Fred Kovaleski and Howe Atwater combined at UCLA last June to bring William and Mary its first national crown as they triumphed with plenty of points to spare. Bartzen trimmed his old rival, Herbie Flam, 6-3, 6-3, and reached the quarters before bowing to Victor Seixas, University of North Carolina ace.

The Indian captain owns a No. 25 singles rating, based mainly on

Brave Cindermen Abandon Gymnasium To Go Outside

By Hugh DeSampier

The Tribe track team resumed outside drills for the first time in several weeks last Wednesday with a short but stiff workout on the part of all concerned. There was a spirit of enthusiasm previously absent, which was instilled by the sudden turn of balmy weather that greeted this area last week. Unless there is more snow, the team will remain outside despite any new cold wave which may come this way. The men dislike the dank, dusty air and the cramped quarters of the gymnasium track. The night workouts also did not set too well with the team.

There was a note of sorrow throughout the squad last Thursday when the team learned that Coach Al Thomas had been called to Michigan to attend the funeral of his mother. Flowers were sent by the team. During the absence of Coach Thomas, John Brown has assumed the role of head man. He has stated that he is well pleased with the work of the squad since he has taken over.

The squad was increased during the past week by the addition of several new members. Among them are the Rosenfield twins, Albert and Frank, who are veterans of last year's squad. The desire for new men was again stressed. There is still time for them to get into shape for the Apprentice School meet on March 27, but they must report immediately to do so.

The team is anticipating its first outdoor time trials, which is scheduled for this Saturday. The coming week will be spent in priming for the trials. Hope for some good comparative times has been expressed by all members.

W&M Cagers Top Generals In Easy Win

Striving for an invitation to the Southern Conference tournament, the William and Mary quintet handed the Washington and Lee five a 71-47 set-back before a packed house in Blow Gym last Saturday.

Led by their versatile center, Chester Giermak, and fast guard, Fuzzy McMillan, the Big Green took a commanding 20-point lead during the first half, and were never in any danger thereafter. Giermak took high scoring honors with 24 points before he had to leave, and McMillan scored 18.

The game was fast during the first 12 minutes, but the locals slowed down after they had reached a 20-point advantage over the Generals. The last time the visitors saw a close game was at the five-minute mark, when the score was 13-8. At half-time the Indians led, 35-16.

In the second half a fouling duel ensued between Giermak and the losers' Don Fergusson. Fergusson kept a close guard on Giermak, but couldn't stop the lanky center, who hit the hoop for five straight field goals before he missed.

Fergusson then left the game on five fouls, and was soon followed by Giermak. By this time, however, the game was in its waning minutes, and even the visitors' ace basketball, Bob Goldsmith, couldn't pile in any more points. Goldsmith was high scorer for W&L with 19 markers.

The win gives William and Mary a six-won and seven-lost conference record. Giermak, who is the leading scorer in the state, now has 328 points.

On the Northern trip last week, the Indians broke even, dropping a 71-61 decision to Boston University at the Arena there Tuesday night and taking a surprisingly easy 61-35 verdict from American International University in Springfield, Mass., on Thursday.

Giermak paced the Tribe with 16 points against BU, and Charlie Sokol and Fuzzy McMillan added 14 apiece. The 27 markers scored by Daly of the home team hurt W&M's cause.

Taking an early lead, the Braves never were in trouble against AIU. The Tribe led at halftime, 31-15. Giermak with 26 and McMillan with 16 were top scorers for the Indians.

Virginia, VPI Top Poolmen

Ted Uhler once more was the redeeming feature of the William and Mary swimming team as the Brave water squad absorbed defeats at the hands of the University of Virginia last Tuesday in Charlottesville, and from Virginia Tech here yesterday afternoon. The big W&M free-style artist piled up 10 of his team's points in each meet.

So far this season, Uhler has won the 100-yard free style as well as the shorter one which has varied in length in accordance with the pools.

At Charlottesville, the Cavaliers took all first place except the events Uhler won, and they scored heavily in the seconds. The same was the case with VPI yesterday.

Others who scored points for William and Mary in the two meets include Mark Waldo, Chuck Platt, Jack Kite, Eli Richards, Pete DeWitt, Leary, Bradley and Roth-fait.

Uhler probably will be the lone William and Mary representative attending the State Meet in Richmond February 27 and 28, and the Southern Conference meet in Chapel Hill March 5 and 6.

Bernard (Tut) Bartzen

his play in the Nationals, when, along with Kovaleski, he reached the third round and took the opening set from Francisco (Pancho) Segura before being eliminated.

Bartzen dropped the opening set of the first match of his collegiate career to Frank Mehener, of Army, and has yet to lose another. He rallied to defeat the West Point star and has been extended upon only a few occasions since then. During the 1946 season, despite being out for about three weeks because of a sprained ankle, he participated in 12 matches and dropped the phenomenally low total of just 13 games. His only doubles loss as an Indian netter came during that same year when he and Larned were beaten by Mark Brown and Charles Lundgren, of Miami.

Much Experience

Tut, who has had 10 years of experience, though he is only 20, captured the National Interscholastic title in 1944, just six years after Kramer turned the trick, and was twice runner-up for the National Junior crown, falling before Bob Falkenburg in '44 and losing to Flam in '45. The Tribe stand-out is a member of the National Junior Davis Cup squad.

Larned having left for the greener fields of Winter Park, Fla., where stands Rollins College, Tut and Kovaleski will be paired to form the No. 1 doubles combine. Further practice will decide which will be the top man in singles competition.

Two 'Charlies' Lead Braves Through Basketball Frays

The William and Mary cagers have two Charlies for their co-captains this season. They are Charlie Teach and Charlie Sokol, both forwards, and both in their second year of service for the Big Green.

Teach and Sokol saw action in college basketball before they enrolled here, Sokol having played in the Southern Conference while he was in the Navy, and Teach at Long Beach Junior College in California.

Teach graduated from Long Beach Polytechnical High School in 1939. After two years at junior college he went into the Navy, in which he served for four years. He didn't go all that time without playing, however, being on the Grosse Ile Naval Air Station team.

Sokol Played At NN

Sokol is also an ex-sailor. He got his first organized basketball under Julie Conn, well-known to W&M fans as a referee, in Newport News High School. This Charlie graduated in 1943 and went into V-12, studying at the University of Richmond. From there he went into the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps at the University of South Carolina.

While in high school, Sokol captained the mythical All-State team in 1942 and 1943. His work at South Carolina earned him a place on the All-Southern Conference team of 1945. He was high scorer in the SC that year.

Both Sokol and Teach entered William and Mary in September, 1946. They are in their senior years now, and the two of them are majoring in business administration.

Sokol, who is 22 years old, was a guard for Dick Gallagher's team of 1946-47. "The Cat" found the range for 178 points in last season's scramble to come in third in the Tribe's scoring race. He stands 6 feet 1 inch tall, weighing in at 175 pounds.

1947 Runner-up

Teach, on the other hand, was a forward last year, tallying 179 points to take the runner-up position to Chet Giermak. He is 25 years of age, 6 feet 2 inches in height, and weighs 180 pounds.

This year both of them have been playing the forward positions on Barney Wilson's starting five. The Cat, however, was injured in the Washington and Lee game of January 13, sustaining a sprained ankle. He was out until the North Carolina game.

The two co-captains are going to be missed next season. Teach, with his experience, has helped the Big Green with his play. Sokol's set-shots, which are one-handed, have also gone a long way toward making the Indians' basketkeeters better than average.

Jane Beatty Plans Federation Motion

Jane Beatty, president of the WAA, will present a recommendation for Federation to the next women's student government meeting on Monday, March 1.

The recommendation is that W&M cooperate with other colleges in Virginia in organizing a State Federation of College Women. Madison College has invited the WAA to a sports day, March 5 and 6, at which time plans and details will be worked out.

Some of the advantages of joining this state federation are that it gives a broader basis for participation, provides a clearance so play days will not conflict with each school's activities, and has better ways to deal with problems and suggestions than the National organization.

The disadvantages are that some schools will not want to join because they will feel it is just one more organization to belong to and be obligated to. Problems will arise concerning the different policies of various schools and undoubtedly there will be conflicts with events scheduled at other colleges.

KD Cagers Win, 24-22

In one of the closest games thus far in the intramural race Kappa Delta came from behind to whip a strong Jefferson six, 24-22.

Jefferson got away to a fast start taking a 14-3 half-time lead but KD came back in the second half and, led by Mary Lou Hoover, who only played one half, pulled ahead to win. Sally Obitz was high scorer for the fray, tallying 14 points.

Gamma Phi Beta was knocked out of the undefeated ranks by a strong Phi Mu team, 23-15. Nancy Ramseur and Betty Hayes led the Phi Mu sextet to victory garnering 11 and 10 points, respectively. Martha Lamborn Ashton was high for Gamma Phi with 8 points.

Pi Phi Wins

Pi Phi snapped back after last week's loss to Kappa, by defeating KD, 21-7. Bev Owens was high for the evening with nine points.

Chandler lost to Chi Omega in a very slow and sloppy game, 38-15. Betsy Schwab was high for Chandler with 11 points.

Kappa continued on its winning ways to defeat a fighting Phi Mu team, 56-15. The Phi Mu guards gave the rangy Kappa forwards more trouble than the score indicated with Dot Franklin being especially effective. All the Kappa forwards scored consistently. See JEFFERSON SIX, Page 6

Hogg Joins Staff, Heads Intramurals

Jane Anne Hogg recently joined the women's physical education department in the capacity of executive secretary of the Women's Athletic Association.

"Piggy" came to William and Mary from the Norfolk County Schools where she taught physical education this past fall. She is also doing graduate work and is starting on her M.A., although she plans to get her degree at another school. Her work here consists of being faculty head of intramurals.

Sigma Rho took over first place in the Fraternity League last week as they hung up their third and fourth victories, defeating Phi Alpha, 76-7, and Lambda Chi, 83-33. In the Independent League, the By-Passers held their lead by picking up a single win, 50-10, over Vets C.

Pi Lambda Phi scored the upset of the week as they handed previously unbeaten Phi Tau its first defeat, 31-27. Clint Kaufman paced the winners with 11 points, while Johnny Boyer dropped in eight points for Phi Tau. In a mild upset, KA defeated Pi KA by 33-15. Ken Martin, 6' 5" KA center, led his team with 14 points.

Jayvees Drop Three Games To Opponents Of Last Week

The William and Mary Junior Varsity basketball team lost three games last week, making their record to date five wins and eight defeats.

The team journeyed to Norfolk Tuesday night and lost a heart-breaker to St. Helena, 60-57. The Extension, trailing at halftime 25-29, tied on the ball game with just 20 seconds to play and sent the contest into an extra period, winning then. Bill Ozenberger was high scorer for the Tribe with 18 points, and Paul Webb was second with 13. The biggest obstacle to the Indians was a 6' 4" giant by the name of Hammel who was the game's high scorer with 20 points.

The Jayvees lost another tough one Thursday when they bowed to the Medical College of Virginia, 49-43. The Little Indians couldn't quite keep up with the pace set by the boys from Richmond, who have won 18 and lost only two. Earl Allara paced the winners' attack, scoring 19 points. Ozenberger led the losers by racking up 13 points, followed by Vic Janega with 10. The MCV five led at the half, 29-22.

With two minutes remaining to be played on Friday night in Norfolk, the boys from Williamsburg led the Division 46-44, but went on to lose the game, 52-46. The Little Indians had led at the half, 29-28. The game's high scorer was Bacalis, who was a constant menace to the Tribe. The leading point-makers for the visiting team were Ozenberger with 18, Bob Benjamin with 11, and Randy Mallory with 10. Benjamin was especially alert on rebounds.

Tonight the Jayvees play their final game of the season against Hampton High on the latter's court.

Skirts in Sports

By Jimmie Murphy

At the last women's student government meeting, it became evident, when the students left after it was announced that there would be a WAA meeting, that the women students did not realize that they were all members of the WAA.

This has probably been the fault of the council. That was one of the main reasons for President Jane Beatty's speaking at the WSCGA meeting. The council has formed the policy of having students informed about the WAA.

Women All Members

Every woman student automatically becomes a member of the Women's Athletic Association upon entering the college. She pays an athletic fee along with her tuition. Most of this fee goes to the men's athletic department out of which she gets to see the football and basketball games. The remainder of the fee goes to the women's athletic association. From this portion the athletic association has a budget with which it carries on its extramural and intramural programs.

WAA Council

The voting council is composed of three students, elected from the student body, and two physical education department members. The non-voting members of the board are a chairman, a student ex-officio member and a faculty ex-officio member. The student members of the board are Jane Beatty, president, Virginia Murphy, point recorder, and Nicky Dillard, secretary. Marty Adams, as student head of intramurals, is the student ex-officio member. Miss Martha Barksdale and Miss Marion Reeder are the voting faculty members while Miss Marguerite Wynne-Roberts and Dr. Caroline Sinclair are the chairman and ex-officio member, respectively.

I hope this column clears up this matter for the majority of women students who have expressed their lack of understanding of the Athletic Association.

Dottie Ellett and Co. (Alpha Chi to the uninitiated) again trampled the opposition, this time in the form of Tri Delt, 35-10. Dottie poured 21 points through the hoops to stay up in the scoring race.

Theta's second team, led by Betsy Graves, defeated Gamma Phi's jayvees, 28-5. Betsy tallied 16 points while the other Theta forwards took care of the rest of the counters between them.

Jean Myers led the Chi O second sextet to a 28-8 victory over the Kappa second team, garnering 12 points, while her teammates Bertie Coulter and Jeanne Anne Harrup each scored eight. Anne Cleaver tallied six of her team's points.

Macbeth

Comedy of Errors. A stellar performer in straight roles, Mary will have an opportunity to display her talents in a part which has been the subject of controversy for over 300 years.

Macbeth was a shining vehicle for such past greats as Mrs. Siddons and Mrs. Ellen Terry. Judith Anderson, in our time, has done the part with some success. The local Lady, Mary McCarthy, will devise her own interpretation of the role, relying only on particular critical suggestions and, of course, the guiding hand of director Althea Hunt.

John Manos, in the title role, will also create his own characterization, taking only occasional tips from the performances of David Garrick, Henry Irving and the contemporary Maurice Evans.

to full payment of fees. When sports are made as attractive as some of the offers can make them, the type of student accepted to play athletics may be come considerably below the level of the general student body, and there trouble arises.

Athletes, especially football players, make a great and unquestioned contribution to college life and to the school itself. The hours of hard work—and they are always present—that the football players put in on the gridiron should receive some compensation. Certain staff members of the publications and some others in school are paid for their work in cash, and some consideration is definitely due the athletes.

So the question boils down to this: Where shall the line be drawn on helping the athletes? The arrangement accepted by the Southern Conference seems quite reasonable and sensible, but probably will not prove workable until it is accepted by a large majority of the schools of the nation.

A reasonable limit to subsidization, along with adherence to a policy of accepting only athletes who can meet the scholastic standards, would lead to a continuation of a healthy college athletic setup all over the country. If it continues to increase as it has in the past 10 or 15 years, a "bust" will result which will bring about the end of some sports at many schools.

The Pacific Coast Conference is suffering from a sudden clamp-down on subsidization which has seriously injured the calibre of play in that league. The smashing defeats of Southern Cal at the hands of Notre Dame and Michigan are good examples of what can happen under such circumstances.

An intelligent course of action by a large number of schools is greatly needed at the present time, and could prove the salvation of football and its continuation on a firm basis.

Library Displays Exhibit Of Books As Part Of Religious Emphasis Day

As a part of the program of Religious Emphasis Day on Sunday, February 29, the library has prepared an exhibit of religious works from the rare book collection.

The exhibit is centered around the Holy Bible, and contains Hebrew, Greek and Latin texts upon which our modern English versions are based. The focal point in the display is the college copy of the 1611 edition of the King James' version of the Bible.

Other volumes trace the development from the Wycliff Bible to the Revised Standard edition of 1946, and includes the Douay version and Monseigneur Knox's translation of the New Testament.

Literature from each of the groups participating in the Student Religious Union, and other religious organizations of the community, has been selected for display. Sermons of Commissary James Blair, Devereux Jarratt, Samuel Davies and other noted Virginians are included.

One section is devoted to religious organizations of American origin, with rare and valuable editions of Science and Health, by Mary Baker Eddy; The Sacred Writings of the Apostles (Bethany, Va., 1832), by Alexander Campbell; and The Book of Mormon (Palmyra, 1830), by Joseph Smith, Jr. Books from the Henkel Press, in the Valley of Virginia, represent the churches of the early German immigrants to Virginia.

Devotional books appropriate to Lent, historically noted religious works, and the modern trends in theology from the books of recognized Jewish, Roman Catholic and Protestant authors complete the exhibit.

Third Royalist Will Appear

The third issue of the Royalist went to press this week and will appear some time during the latter part of March, according to Marcia Magill, editor-in-chief.

Chapel Audience To Hear R. E. Burt Tomorrow Night

The Reverend Robert E. Burt, assistant minister at the Methodist Church, will speak in Wren Chapel at 6:30 P. M. tomorrow.

Claiming that "there is still unfinished business in all walks of life," George J. Oliver, professor of education, stated that liberal education enables the student to determine values and to have worthy ideals in the ultimate search for truth, at the chapel service last Wednesday.

Dr. Oliver also said that, "In the past 50 years we have come far in establishing elementary schools, high schools, colleges and universities, and still there is unfinished business. However, this is no cause for discouragement, for it provides challenge and inspiration for living."

In conclusion he stated "the finest thing your dearest friend could wish for you is that throughout your life you will have in your hand some unfinished business."

Hocutt Writes On Lodges For 'The Fraternity Month'

An article entitled The Fraternity Lodge Program at the College of William and Mary written by John E. Hocutt, dean of men, is scheduled for publication in the March issue of The Fraternity Month magazine.

VA Regulation Qualifies Veterans To Limited Time Training Program

A new regulation issued by the Veterans Administration extends to all World War II veterans qualifying for training under the Vocational Rehabilitation Act (Public Law 16) the reduced-time training privileges previously limited to two groups of disabled trainees.

These two groups were composed of veterans whose disabilities would never permit full-time training and veterans suffering from arrested pulmonary tuberculosis.

Any seriously disabled veteran, unable to devote as many hours per day to training as the ordinary veteran trainee does, now may qualify for full-time training under specified conditions. They are as follows:

(1) The VA medical consultant determines that the nature of the trainee's disability will not permit him to devote as many hours to training as the ordinary trainee does.

(2) The veteran's individual training program requires as many hours per day for training as the medical consultant determines his disability will permit.

(3) There is good promise that the veteran's work tolerance will increase more rapidly if he is in training for a suitable employment objective than if he were not taking any training.

(4) The hours of the reduced-time training program will be increased gradually as the veteran's work tolerance increases until he is taking a normal training program. Expert medical service must be sought before any increase is made in the number of training hours. The first increase in training hours must be made within three months after the veteran enters the reduced-time training program.

Those disabled veterans whose work tolerance does not increase after three months will be withdrawn from training under the new program and considered for training under the former reduced-time standards which still prevail.

These standards require that the amount of time devoted to training must be as great as the medical consultant determines a veteran's disability ever will permit. The course is regarded as full-time training if it will restore the veteran's employability; if it can be completed in the statutory time; and if there is no other appropriate course to which the individual trainee can apply a greater amount of training time.

The industrialist traced his own career as an example of the typical member of the field. He said that most industrialists have been engineers and worked their way up, having very practical backgrounds of experience. The older industrialists, he stated, have a fairer idea of business dealings than the younger ones of today.

He went on to say that, since industry is constantly changing, there is always a need for men who have experience in the newest methods and with the newest machinery, and that it will be the place of the younger group, to take over the leadership.

Citing as examples of the success of industry such things as the improvement of the state of the Negro and the great job that was done in the recent war, Robeson declared that management desires a "happy society with fair pay to the workers." His comment on labor consisted of mentioning the good relations between labor and management in the Newport News shipyard and the statement that labor unions in the South were merely "good experience for those concerned."

Operating under a new system by which the members will be divided into two squads, one varsity and the other junior, each comprised of eight students, the cheerleaders are planning to enlarge the number of cheers and to eliminate some of the older ones. New uniforms consisting of green sweaters, white skirts and tights, and the William and Mary monograms have been selected.

The squad at the present time has only five veteran members, Eleanor Grant, Shirley Green, Carol Achenbach, Sue Hines, and C. Warren Smith. "The third and final try-outs, at which six men and five women will be chosen, are scheduled for Sunday, February 29, at 4 P. M.," stated Smith.
